1984 SECOND ANNUAL PROFESSIONAL SEMINAR – OVERVIEW

The Second Annual Professional Seminar was held at the Monroe Institute October 10-14, 1984. Six of our members made presentations to the group on their utilization of Hemi-Sync® in their profession. The talks were enlightening, and they provided much food for thought.

This year we allowed more free time for participants to get to know one another on a more personal basis, and a lot of sharing of information was done at this time. Many of the Professional Members felt that some of the informal talks were extremely valuable, and they were able to relate someone else's application of Hemi-Sync to their profession. Some of the favorable comments were, "I found myself busily learning many new things and yet felt very relaxed in the process, just like Hemi-Sync!" and "I will make that week-end as the solid base for a new beginning, or perhaps a beginning upward movement toward a new plateau." Many of the participants felt that they were exposed to so much information that it would take weeks to sort all of it out and begin to put it into use.

A tour was given of the recently upgraded research laboratory facilities where the newly completed CHEC (Controlled Holistic Environmental Chamber) unit was displayed. This unit is a sound proof, copper shielded enclosure with a water bed and is set up with preliminary physiological instrumentation for the subjects.

Joe McMoneagle gave an excellent presentation covering his work with remote viewing in one of the evening programs. This was highlighted with tapes, slides and a very informative question and answer period.

Rita and Martin Warren had all the participants experience one of the lab's test tapes, and that was followed by an update on the explorer work taking place in the laboratory.

In the next few issues of BREAKTHROUGH we will be sharing some of the complete reports that were presented here at the Seminar for those of you who were unable to attend. This month we will feature Richard Carsten's report on "Integration of Yoga and Hemi-Sync." Additional reports from other members will be sent from time to time as we receive them.

We hope more of you will plan to join us next year at the Professional Seminar. Each year the participants find the professional and personal sharing of greater and greater value. Mark your calendar now for next October.
